Items of Interesting Folk in Diplomatic, Official, and Resident Circles.

during their long residence in Washington. The colonel was aide to President Roosevelt during his first term at the White House. The church was effectively decorated with greens and cut flowers, with lighted tapers burning on the altar.

lace, an heirloom in the family. A scarf of the lace was arranged across the front of the bodice, ending in a graceful cascade. The long court train of satin, which was hung from his shoulders, was cut in a deep V at the decollete and filled in with chiffon. The gown had elbow length sleeves of chiffon. Miss Symons wore a voluminous tulle veil and carried a cluster of white blossoms.

Cousin Is Maid of Honor.
Miss Louise A. Robinson, of Pittsburgh, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and her sister, Miss Lettie Robinson, one of the four bridesmaids. The others were Miss Margaret Burgwin, of Pittsburgh; Miss Margaret Hubbard, of Yonkers, N. Y.; and Miss Amy Logan, of New York.

Their gowns were fashioned of apricot tulle, one of the new soft, French fabrics which has metallic tints in the high lights. The brides were guileless of trimming save for kimono sleeves of creamy lace, and the ankle-length skirts were draped to conform to the new silhouette, bouffant over the hips and very narrow about the feet.

Quaint little panel trains falling from huge bows of the taffeta gave a piquant touch to the gossamer. The bridesmaids wore taupe velvet picture hats, with clusters of ostrich tips by way of trimming, and carried pink roses. The maid of honor's gown was of blue tulle, and she wore a big black hat and carried roses.

John M. S. Allison, of New York, was best man for Mr. Van Winkle and the ushers were Louis V. Ledoux, of Cornwall, Mass.; William L. Henry, of Lawrenceville, N. J.; David Magie and Robert K. Root, of Princeton, and Kingsland Van Winkle, of Asheville, N. C., a brother of the bridegroom.

Mr. Van Winkle's mother, Mrs. M. A. Van Winkle, of Asheville, N. C., was present at the ceremony and received with Colonel and Mrs. Symons and the bride party at the wedding breakfast. Mrs. Symons wore a handsome gown of French blue satin, with a black ostrich trimmed hat.

of Cornwall, N. Y.; Mrs. Ralston, of New York, Mrs. J. C. Gittings, Mrs. Frederick Jordan, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howell, of Philadelphia, and James Magee.

Mr. Van Winkle and his bride will make their home in New Haven. Her traveling costume is of biscuit colored serge, made in modified eton jacket effect and opening over a narrow vestee of peach colored velvet. With this she wore a big black velvet hat faced in biscuit color and a voluminous wrap of dark brown cloth and kolinsky.

Jane Story Engaged.
Mr. and Mrs. John P. Story announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Story, to Capt. Robert H. Glen, honorary attaché of the British embassy. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Story was presented to society in Washington last season and was one of the most popular, as well as one of the prettiest buds of her year. She is a granddaughter of the late General John P. Story and Mrs. Story and a niece of Countess de Buisseret, wife of a distinguished Belgian diplomat, who lost her life as a result of exposure during the German invasion of Belgium.

Captain Glen has been in Washington about two years and has been particularly active socially. He made a brilliant military record during the war, serving through the Gallipoli campaign during which he was painfully wounded. His mother, Mrs. Robert Glen, is spending the winter in Washington with him.

Miss Sarah V. King will be presented to society this afternoon at a tea dance, which her mother Mrs. A. F. A. King will give for her at the Washington Club.

The arrangements and decorations will be simple, palms and ferns being used in the windows.

The debutante will wear a charming gown of white tulle draped over satin and made with simple lines with pearl trimmings on the bodice and a deep girdle of white velvet. She will carry an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. King who is in mourning will wear a simple black gown and will be assisted in receiving by her daughter Miss Louise King.

Mrs. W. H. Wilmer, Mrs. Louis S. Greene, Mrs. John Van-Rensselaer, Mrs. Avery D. Andrews of New York, and the Misses Abbot will assist.

The debutantes to assist in receiving are Miss Peggy Martin, Miss Betty Grove, Miss Marcia Chapin, Miss Elizabeth Kemp, Miss Helen Tucker, Miss Anne Dulany, Miss Mary Custer Lee, Miss Lindsay Wood, Miss Helen McLanahan, Miss Eleanor Harris and Miss Eleanor Johnston.

Following the tea Mrs. King will entertain the young people at dinner at her home in Massachusetts avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Myer Cohen announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Edith Cohen, to Alexander Caldwell Robeson, of this city. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, 2146 Wyoming avenue, at 1 o'clock today, with only the immediate families present.

J. Harr. Summers and his sisters, Miss Summers and Miss Helen Summers, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Barclay Young, returned today to their home in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte are spending a short time in Washington on their way from New York to Palm Beach where they will pass the rest of the winter.

Mrs. William Littauer and Miss Louise Littauer, who have been in New York for several days, are expected back tomorrow.

At the Theaters

B. F. KEITH'S Dazzling Display of Dainty Damels.

The show at B. F. Keith's this week runs to a dazzling display of dainty damels. This may sound like a circus, but it is quite true. Seats in the balcony head row bid fair this week to rival the popularity of a ton of coal or a sack of sugar.

Bothwell Browne and Anatol Friedland are the stars of the show, and with each other their aggregations of the female of the species.

Bothwell Browne has with him a flock of bathing girls in costumes, that while they would very likely never be seen in the water, are enough to make mere man gasp with joy. The scenic effects are lavish, and Browne pleases immensely with his dancing. He is ably supported by a dainty couple, except the Browne sisters.

Then after one has feasted his eyes on the bevy of bathing beauties, along comes Anatol Friedland, well known to every one as the composer of many songs that have occupied the spotlight of musician for many years. He, too, has surrounded himself with many specimens of female loveliness, headed by Alma Adair. We take our partner's word for it that the girls were "some" gowns. Friedland's offering, "Music Land," is a compelling combination of song and dance.

The 21 shows, rivals for the plaudits of the audience were a pair of "nut" acts, Albert or pecan, take your choice. Ward and Van are performers on the harp and the violin, gave a sort of "nut-on-the-half shell" variety, and in the parlance of "vodevil" were a riot.

Joe Cook's act was all nut, sort of unshelled nut, as it were. He does all the things that a half dozen acts might ordinarily do, and is a humorist of no slight ability. With his assistant he provoked the well known gales of laughter time and again.

Terpsichorean fantasies were pleasantly done by Ernestine Myers and Paisley Noon. To say that their can dance is putting it rather mildly. Their act was fresh and new, and the setting, a riot of color, was a masterpiece.

Emerson and Baldwin have a travesty, "So This Is Paris," and are club swingers of real merit.

Barthold's birds open the show. These educated birds are of all varieties, and quite a bit better than the usual "dumb" act.

House features concluded a bill which will do the tired business man, as our N' York friends are wont to say, a world of good to see. In fact the business man who is not tired will enjoy it just as much.

GAYETY.

Songs, Dances and Humor Plentiful.

There is a wealth of good material in James E. Cooper's "Red Show in Town," playing at the Gaiety this week, and with Frank Hunter at its head, the company puts over a show that is hard to beat. The entertainment is divided into two parts, the opening number bearing the title of "Here, There and Everywhere," while "Hello, Jazz" closes the show.

Hunter appears first as an Italian vagabond and then in blackface. His original methods stamp him as one of the most versatile comedians in burlesque, and in this year's vehicle he finds plenty of opportunities to display his ability. Manny Kohler and Charles Weston are able assistants in the funmaking, while Ralph Rockaway, in a straight role, is good.

Lynn Cantor is not only good looking, but has an exceptionally pleasing voice. Her songs are a distinct feature of the entertainment. The McCloud sisters, Mabel and Flossie, introduce a number of new jazz dances, while Virginia Ware and Margie Winters are effective in songs and dances. A capable chorus and lavish costuming feature the new Cooper show.

PENN GARDENS.

New Year Eve Party
on Wednesday Night.

An extra added attraction will be staged at the Greater Penn Gardens next Wednesday night, when a New Year Eve party will be held for the dancers in these large gardens. Commencing at 12 o'clock and continuing until 2 in the morning, the dancers will be given an opportunity to welcome the New Year in a most unique manner. Favors and noise makers will be provided to all patrons.

MARRIED IN AUTOMOBILE JUST TO GET A THRILL

ROCKVILLE, Md., Dec. 30.—An automobile, in which they made the trip from Washington to Rockville and return, was the scene late Saturday afternoon of the marriage of Miss Grace Swisher, of Level, W. Va., and Leslie R. Talbot, of St. George, Va., the Rev. P. Rowland Wagner, pastor of the Baptist Church, performing the ceremony.

Explaining to the minister that they were anxious to get married under circumstances somewhat different from the commonplace, they inquired of him if he had any objection to performing the ceremony in the automobile. Upon being answered in the negative, the three entered the machine and drove to the outskirts of town, where the knot was securely tied.

AT KILLS BLACKSNAKE TO SAVE SLEEPING BABY

GALENA, Kan., Dec. 30.—Tabby, a black and white house cat, the playmate of Teddy White, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. White, of Galena, came to the rescue recently when a large blacksake approached the baby carriage, which Teddy was lumbering on the lawn of his parents' home.

Mrs. White, hearing a commotion in the yard, hurried to the door and saw the baby on the ground with two awfully whirling bodies within a few feet of him.

After rescuing Teddy, Mrs. White turned her attention to the battle, which was short-lived, as Tabby suddenly sank her teeth into the reptile's end and won.

The snake measured 5 feet 2 inches.

Shubert- Garrick

"We'll guarantee you'll be amused if you see 'Bucking the Tiger' at the Garrick this week. Crammed full of laughs, with a number of thrills thrown in for good measure; peopled with types well portrayed and unusually interesting and presented with plenty of speed and pep, this melodramatic comedy looks like a sure-fire hit."

—The Times.

"'Bucking the Tiger' holds the interest from start to finish. The lines are clever and caustic and the situations amusing."

—The Star.

"'Bucking the Tiger' is one of the most entertaining offerings of the season. It's farcical fun causes waves of laughter to sweep over the theater for nearly three refreshing hours."
